Pet Shipment Restrictions

Shipping the family pet back to the states is expensive and can become difficult during the summer months. The five U.S. air carriers serving Germany, American Airlines, U.S. Air, Northwest Airlines, Delta and United Airlines/Lufthansa, have all announced restrictions on pet shipments. American Airlines will not ship pets until September. U.S. Air will take pets, but only from Frankfurt. Northwest Airlines will only take pets on certain types of aircraft. Delta and United will only take between seven and 10 pets per aircraft. The Official Travel section will attempt to make reservations for pets on the same flight as the traveler. However, the Official Travel section cannot use a specific airline or alternate routing in order to move a pet if it involves excess cost. All costs associated with pet shipment are the service member's responsibility. If the pet cannot be booked on a flight with the member, a freight company must ship the pet.
